WAR OF RACES.

The "war of races" seems to be fairly inaugurated in the South. Unlike a gress, a fight may be opened and prosecuted by only one of the parties; and such seems to be pretty nearly the case in this matter. News of conflicts between the whites and blacks come to us nearly every day, and in each case with nearly the same results. The which usually amounts to about this: with one or more white men-the blacks apparently being the offenders, though just what was the offense seldom appears; but any one at all familiar with the kind of treatment that white men feel at liberty to show to negroes, can readily see how the negro's resentment of the most outrageous insults would bring on a collision, and out of this would grow a conflict that would spread dismay through all the region, and be used by the murderous "chivalry" as an occasion for such a horrid butchery as that of week before last at Trenton, in Tennessee-when sixteen colored men, who had been lodged in jail, without any definite charge made rumor of an intended negro assault fice it to say, they have eaten all our front to endeavor to exterminate this as follows: against the whites-were taken from corn, (and our prospect for sod corn mighty foe. the prison by nearly a hundred masked was good,) and fall crops, and most of For years and years-weary, longvictims destroyed; and apparently this is only the beginning of the sorrows in
